

Ackergill Tower

Take your team to new heights at Ackergill Tower

If you are bored with holding your corporate events at the same old mediocre venues, why not take your team to new heights by whisking them off to Ackergill Tower for an away-day with a difference that you will never forget.

Team building is always far from tedious at Ackergill Tower. The property is not only an exclusive and breathtaking 15th century Scottish castle, but it is also situated in one of the UK's most unspoilt locations, offering all guests a bespoke and personal service whatever the occasion.

You can even hold your meeting at Ackergill's Tree House, which is purposely designed as a state of the art meeting room with simultaneous access for multiple laptop computers to the Internet, electronic chalk board and world wide video conferencing. The Tree House is perched high in the trees and has magnificent views of the bay and castle, making it a wonderful place for inspired strategic thinking.

If you want to explore Ackergill's beautiful surroundings during your stay, there are always plenty of seasonal activities to keep you entertained such as horse-riding, falconry, walking and golf.
www.celticcastles.com/castles/ackergill-tower/

Opposite Page (top): Ackergill Tower sits in beautiful coastal surroundings in the North of Scotland.

Opposite Page (bottom): The 25 rooms are located throughout the grounds of Ackergill Tower in the 5 separate accommodation spots.

This Page (top): The Blue Room was originally the nursery, and contains the original stove, feeding chair and the cot (made in 1852).

This Page (middle): The castle's Head Chef, will enjoy planning menus and discussing what is at its best during your stay before you come.

This Page (bottom): As well as offering outstanding accommodation, Ackergill Tower also offers a wide range of activities to be enjoyed.

